100TH ANNUAL CRAWFORD COUNTY FAIR

AUGUST 3 - 6, 2016
As August draws near and the annual Crawford County Fair comes ever closer, the Fair itself is set to pass a major milestone in its history: its centennial celebration.

What is truly extraordinary, however, is that this is only the hundredth year the Fair has been held under its current name. In reality, the Fair itself passed its hundredth birthday over forty years ago and celebrated its first birthday before the town of Girard itself even existed.

That first Fair was held near Cato due to the town’s proximity to a popular stagecoach route, with diplomas awarded in place of standard prizes. It did not yet bear the name of “Crawford County Fair,” as it was put on by the Crawford County Farmers and Mechanics Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Cato’s Fair was short-lived, held only once in the year 1867. In January 1870, however, the county began to negotiate for access to forty acres of land along the east side of Sinnet Street in Girard. This would become the spot for the first annual Fair in October of 1873.

Over the period of three years, the Fair expanded tremendously. In 1876, it featured a pacing race—complete with a winner’s prize of $200, which amounts to $4,273 today—a hot air balloon ascension and a parachute jump. Unfortunately, that same year, the rumbling of trouble began when the Joplin Railroad passed through the fairgrounds, ruining their sole water source, the Fair was once again forced to move.

Despite the setback, the Fair returned in 1878 to roaring success. Held on the land that is now part of Girard Medical Center, the 40-acre plot sat a mile west of Girard at the time. That year, it included a half-mile long racetrack, pens for livestock, box stalls for racing stock and the largest “floral hall” (greenhouse) west of the Mississippi.

Having learned their lesson with the Railroad, this new location included two dams for stock water as well as two wells. An entire grove of shade trees completed the new look for the grounds.

By the time that Fair’s twelfth consecutive year rolled around, it was booming. According to Genesis of Girard, the society “had a capital stock of $10,000, mostly owned by prosperous farmers in the county, and [offered] premiums of about $5,000.” Locals were even given the opportunity to operate various concession stands for watermelon, cider and hot candy.

When 1916 rolled around, the Crawford County Fair Association was founded. They officially took over running the Fair and gave it its current name of the Crawford County Fair. The new name came with another location change, and in 1924 it moved to border Western Avenue.

It was at this location that the Fair experienced a brush with greatness. During the Fair of 1927, Charles Lindbergh flew low over the town, saluting the people of Girard. He had just completed his historic flight over the Atlantic. As he circled the square, he dropped a message to the town, congratulating them on the completion of the first airplane factory west of the Mississippi. The message was read from the Fair grandstand to the people of Girard and was later framed and placed in the Chamber of Commerce.

In 1936, the Fair was moved for a final time to its current location east of town. Since then, the grounds have been improved, buildings added, and the grandstands, while being demolished, will be rebuilt through the Grandstands fund set up through the Girard Area Community Foundation (Donations for erection of new grandstands are being accepted). It now stands ready to welcome visitors to the Crawford County Centennial Fair, a celebration for the ages that starts August 3rd, 2016. Will you be there?

As it was put on by the Crawford County Farmers and Mechanics Agricultural and Horticultural Society.

Reserve Champion Senior Dog Showman –
1. Read General Rules.
2. All exhibits must be in place in the 4-H department by 12:00 noon Wednesday, Aug. 3, 2016, unless otherwise designated in Department Rules. Exhibits will be judged Wednesday, Aug. 3, 12:00 noon.
3. Individual entries are limited to two covered boxes 18 x 24 x 3.5 inches (maximum). Plexiglas covers required; glass covers will not be accepted.
4. Each exhibitor is required to identify each box by placing an identification label bearing exhibitor’s name, county or district and the class. One label goes in the upper left corner of the box (inside) and the other on the lower right corner of the box (outside). Arrange specimens in the box so it can be displayed lengthwise.
5. The number of orders, specimens (and families where required) must be included on the exhibitor’s box identification label. Only adult specimens can be used in collection boxes.
6. Arrangement of specimens: The preferred method is to arrange the insects in groups or rows parallel to the short sides of the box. Arrangements that run lengthwise of the box are frequently downgraded in judging. Specimens are to be arranged by Order in the box, then family where required.
7. For each collection class, two labels will be centered on the pin beneath each specimen. First (closest to the specimen) is the common name label and the second label should include date/locality. Full county name, state abbreviation and collector name on the second label is required. The specimens should be collected by the exhibitor and should focus on Kansas and neighboring states. Other specimens from the continental United States may be included as long as properly labeled.

8. Emphasis in judging will be placed on the overall variety of insects represented in the collection, accuracy of identification, skill and technique acquired in mounting of specimens, and overall arrangement and appearance of the collection.

9. Specimens of soft bodied insects such as aphids, lice, termites, etc. should be exhibited in alcohol filled vials; however, the use of alcohol filled vials should be limited to only those specimens that lose their shape when pinned, since the vials pose a significant hazard to the rest of the collection if they become loose in transit.

10. Identification should follow the taxonomy included in www.bugguide.net.

LIVESTOCK PROJECTS

HERDSMANSHP PRIDE

The herdsmanship of all barns at the Crawford County Fair is an important part of our TOTAL 4-H PROGRAM. All livestock and exhibits are the end result of hours of hard work. The Fair is no more than a place to put your hard work on display for hundreds of people to see.

Let’s all work together to put 4-H on display during the County Fair. We encourage you to decorate your stalls, pens and barns in an attractive manner. Although there will be no formal evaluation of each barn, the manner in which your projects are displayed reflects greatly upon you, the exhibitor, and the whole Crawford County 4-H Program. I know you will make us proud of you all.

As has been tradition for the past decade, this year’s Fair will go out to roaring engines and the crunch of metal as Demolition Derby drivers meet their competitors in the dirt of the Bill Peak Rodeo Arena.

With an average draw of 3,500-4,000 spectators and 30 drivers a year, the Derby is certainly one of the Fair’s biggest events. Not much has changed over the years, which just goes to show that there’s no substitute for when the wheels start to spin and the dirt starts to fly.

Granted, with the growing popularity of derbies in the area there have been a few tweaks to keep the Fair’s Derby competitive. This year, for instance, there are five other derbies happening in the area on the same night.

“We’ve never made any major changes to the Derby,” Fair Board Association member Kim Viets said. “But there have been a few things changed in order to keep up with the derby culture throughout the years and to continue to draw local drivers and the local crowd. Things such as changes in the rules and the amount of prize money given away.”

The increased popularity has also meant a change in slated time. When the Fair ran from Monday to Thursday, the Derby would kick things off the first night. After switching to a Wednesday to Saturday run, the Derby’s engines would roar on Friday night. Eventually, the event would find its home in the Fair’s final night.

The Derby hasn’t always been a staple event of the Fair, however. Before the mid-1980s, a different sort of vehicle competition dominated the scene: the tractor sled pull.

Put on by a handful of locals in the Young Farmers Group (YFG), the tractor sled pull began as a way for the organization to make money. Known as the “Draggin’ Wag-on,” the original sled was designed and built in a member’s shop. They hoped their machine would lead to a safer way of conducting area tractor pulls.

Their idea caught on, and soon their sled was being used for tractor pulls everywhere from Nevada, Mo., to Eldorado, Kan.

Similar to the different classes available in the Derby, the tractor sled pull featured different classes a puller could enter. These classes (called “brackets”) were divided based on weight.

“As the tractors got heavier and faster, the weight was adjusted on the sled to make it harder to pull,” said John Michael, one of the original members of the YFG. “The puller that pulled the sled the farthest in his weight bracket won first place.”

By the time the mid-80s rolled around, tractors had become so powerful and fast that the decision was made to retire the sled due to safety.

“A world of experience was gained from constructing the sled to transporting it from pull to pull,” Michael said. “A lot of memories and new friendships were made from this endeavor.”

Aside from a tractor sled pull that was run for a few years in the early 2000s, this year will be the first that the event makes its reappearance at the Fair. It will be run by Bernie Zook, out of Columbus.

Anyone who's raised an animal for 4-H, sought to buy a beef cow or hog from the Fair stock, or even just visited the Fair sometime over the last sixty-odd years has probably heard the name Humble.

The name has become synonymous not only with the real estate sector in Girard, but also with the auction block and livestock show that wraps up the Fair each year. For many, hearing a Humble belt out prices and cajole buyers under that tin roof in the sweltering August weather is just another tradition.

That tradition began sixty-five years ago with Walt Humble. Those of you who are particularly well-versed in the history of the Fair may question that number, considering the livestock show at the Fair has only existed for fifty-three years.

As it turns out, the livestock show once existed separately from the Fair. For years, it was held at the Hall & Dillon packing house in Pittsburg. It consisted of beef cattle only, although by the time the show moved to join with the Fair in the early 1960s, the other “typical” animals were included in it as well.

Walt moved with the livestock show and was the auctioneer at the Fair’s first official one. He would continue to auctioneer for the Fair until 1976, at which point he retired from his 25-year career and handed the reins over to another familiar name, his son Bud.

Bud himself is no stranger to the Fair, having attended his first one at the age of eight back in the early 1950s. He even met his wife, Connie, thanks to the Fair. “It’s grown quite a bit since then,” he said. “I remember when my dad built the old racetrack that used to be in front of the old grandstands. They would run car races every Sunday night, with half the money going to the Fair and half to my dad. My six sisters and I would go up in the grandstands and sell pop. Eventually they started doing horse pulling instead of car racing, and my dad would announce that about four nights a week.”

He added that there’s been a lot of memories throughout the years—almost too many to choose from.

“I remember having to sell a bucket calf that a kid had grown pretty attached to. It had won Grand Champion Bucket Calf the first year and Grand Champion Beef the year after. That was a pretty touching moment.”

After a 40-year career, there have been a lot of kids sell their animals under him. There are a few families he remembers that, between him and his father, they’ll have sold to for three generations. Of course, there have been lots of new faces to help out as well.

“It’s a great field. We don’t want anything out of it, we just like to be able to help the kids that need it, the ones that maybe people don’t know about. Some of the kids that haven’t been doing this for generations—sometimes they need just a little bit of help to get their animal sold for a fair price. Being able to do that is its own reward.”

As is tradition, however, there comes a time when a generation must pass the torch onto the next. Just as his father did with him, Bud says it’s time for his own son, Donnie, to take over the business.

“This is going to be the last year I auctioneer for the Fair,” he said. “Donnie has been helping me out for about 15 years now on things like farm sales, so it’s time for him to take control.”

Of course, as evidenced by the many third- and fourth-generationers that continue to come back every year, it’s hard to keep anyone away from the Fair when August rolls around. For Bud, there’s nothing specific he looks forward to each year, but he knows it’s going to be special nonetheless.

“That’s something I never think about until I get there. It’s a great community we have around here—there’s nothing like it. People in the big city don’t know what they’re missing for too many reasons to name. It’s a great tradition that’s being passed down through the generations. Every year it carries on.”

Bud Humble (L), along with his late father Walt have been auctioning the Fair Livestock Show for a combined sixty-five years. Bud is now ready to pass the reigns onto his son Donnie (R) after the 2016 fair.

Through the Generations

Confits on 100 years!
Angels Among Us will once again be serving their famous fried-chicken dinners at the Crawford County Fair this year. Contrary to rumor, AAU volunteer Janette Allai said, this will not be the last year Angels Among Us hosts their dinners.

“There are a few people who will no longer be helping after this year, and we’ll be cutting back on doing weddings and things like that, but we’re still doing the Fair,” she said.

Angels Among Us is a nonprofit organization run by volunteers that raises money to help cancer patients in the area with financial needs such utility bills and gas to go to and from doctor appointments. The Fair is the organization’s biggest money-raiser of the year.
SEK ARTFEST CELEBRATES CENTENNIAL FAIR

Displays to be auctioned August 6

One hundred years is something to celebrate, which is why when it came time to choose what objects the SEK Art Fest would promote this year, the answer was simple.

“We always try to tie the objects in with an event that is happening in Crawford County. This year we’re celebrating the 100-year anniversary of the Crawford County Fair by presenting decorated farm animals,” said SEK Art Fest Chairwoman Leslie Harris.

Cows, horses and pigs — 30 in all — hit the streets around Pittsburg, Kansas in early June to show off the imaginative work of area artists. They will spend the summer in storefronts around town as part of this year’s Southeast Kansas Art Fest before being auctioned at the Centennial Crawford County Fair celebration held August 3-6 in Girard.

“There’s a lot of agriculture-based economy here. There are a lot of farmers and people who raise and sell animals, so we wanted to pay tribute to that part of our area’s background,” Harris continued.

“We have an array of designs,” Harris said. “Some of the designs are tied into the fair theme. There’s a 4-H pig, there’s a centennial pig, there’s an American flag horse, a milkman cow, a Milky Way cow, a horse of a different color, among many other wonderful concepts.”

The animals then made their debut all together at the Pittsburg Farmers Market in early June, which Harris said also ties into supporting local farmers and agriculture.

“Our reveal drew a large crowd to the farmers market facility, which was intended to help the local vendors do well selling that morning too,” Harris said. “The same goes for the objects. We purchased them from The Concrete Yard in Girard to save on costs and to support our local economy. After all, one of our major goals with this organization is helping our communities thrive.”

After the initial reveal, they’ll be on display for the whole week of the fair — in their own barn — for people to enjoy and then be auctioned off the last day of the fair. Funds raised keep the arts flourishing in Crawford County.

“We take those funds and reinvest them into the community for various arts and cultural projects,” Harris said.

This includes enhancing the Chicken Wars at Pittsburg’s Little Balkans Days, establishing the Empty Bowls pottery fundraiser for Wesley House’s food pantry, supporting the Cow Creek Bluegrass Festival, Colonial Fox Backstage Concert series, providing grants for murals in downtown Pittsburg and sponsoring exhibits at the Miners Hall Museum.

100th Annual Crawford County Fair
August 3 - 6, 2016
There are a-thousand-and-one projects for 4-Hers and Open Classers to put their minds to, each of which takes a special sort of preparation and dedication. Parents and community volunteers are an essential part of this, from helping gather woodworking supplies to buying livestock. While they may help with the start-ups for the project, however, it is the 4-H and Open Classer that carry the sole responsibility of completing their craft by the end-of-July deadline. That’s where the life skills are truly learned.

“4-Hers must have the drive to work on their projects every day! They are solely responsible for feeding, training, and fitting their animal; working on their craft and practicing to learn the best method of constructing it; and overall presenting their project in the best way possible.”

Not only do these projects keep those who work on them busy for the duration of the summer, but by becoming involved in an organization such as 4-H they also help to build and strengthen community relationships—one of the Fair’s central goals.

“The ability for these kids to come to the fair heightens their sense of community,” Rohling said. “They get to see how much the community is involved in the Fair and how much time volunteers devote to it. This makes them appreciate their roots. These 4-H kids will become the parents and volunteers that the 4-H organization needs to survive and function. A common sight you’ll see at the Fair is a 4-Her without animals pushing wheelbarrows. They aren’t competing, but merely helping a friend.”

This ability to recognize and appreciate their roots is an important one. The Fair itself has been passed down through the generations, shared between families who have been attending, competing and volunteering at the Fair all their lives. While some may come for the funnel cakes or social element, it’s really the projects of these 4-Hers and Open Classers that keep the Fair going and the crowds coming.

“The center of the Fair is the kids that work hard on their exhibits all year. The community comes to support the kids and then in the evening everyone gets to celebrate with a funnel cake or by attending a concert. It’s a great way for 4-Hers to get involved in projects that will benefit them for the rest of the life. For example, a 4-Her involved in beef cattle may use their 4-H animal to start a small herd. This herd will gradually build, providing 4-Hers with a start after school or is a way of paying for school. 4-H is providing them with skills that will benefit them for life!”

And so the cycle continues. Each new generation passes these skills, these life lessons and passions, onto the next. As summer settles in and a lazy heat blankets the countryside, you can be sure to see these individuals are hard at work continuing the traditions that have stood since the county’s first Fair back in 1867.

So to all of you Fair lovers—those who come for the rodeo, the Derby, the rides, the homemade ice cream; those who come with their hogs, their pies, their crafts; those who haul their camper out to the fields to spend a week under the stars, get ready. It’s that time of year again.
